Military solar panels have been developed for the Marines, U S Army and other branches of the service who need to deploy electricity in the field while meeting the most stringent quality and durability requirements. These military solar panels are available for civilian, institutional and personal use. They are often used for personal emergency solar power and for NGO emergency and disaster response where rapid mobilization and compact transport is critical to humanitarian aid. These foldable solar panels meet and exceed the requirements of MIL-STD-810 and have been field proven. These panels are approved by CECOM as part of the BB-2590 soldier battery pack. They are the ultimate portable folding solar panels for performance and mobility. The Military folding solar panel performs comparably to the top performing rigid mono or polycrystalline solar panels while weighing 70 percent less and requiring less than 10 percent of the area when folded for storage or transport.
